Commodore Forsberg Having Speed Boat Built.

The hull of a new speed boat owned by Commodore A. G. Forsberg of this city is being completed and made ready to be launched before the end of the present week from Cumberland's boatshop, foot of 9th street southwest. The new craft, unlike all other speed boats on the river, is more of a clipper than a launch, like a wedge. It has considerable round bottom, and the sides come up high, as a protection from seas when running fast. The launch will be equipped with a 25-horsepower gasoline motor that is expected to drive it through the water at a speed of about eighteen or twenty miles an hour. To stand the strain of this high speed an engine bed about half the length of the boat has been built for the motor. The vessel will be handsomely equipped for pleasure trips on the river. She will be ready to start on her motor-boat races during the water carnival in the latter part of this week. Commodore Forsberg's launch will be one of the finest of its kind afloat.

AMUSEMENTS.

Columbia.

When a critic finds an audience carried away with a play and his play, and then, at the same time, the critic finds even himself on the verge of patting his hands in applause, it is fair to presume that something good is happening. That was about the situation at the Columbia Theater last night, when Al H. Wilson opened the playhouse with his new play, "Mets in Ireland."

The play is one of those pleasing deceptions of Irish romance, with its banishes and its fairies, its mad repartees and its witty dialogue, its hard-hearted landlord and its wicked English officer, which in type has served the purpose of idealizing Ireland and its people for so many generations. The only difference perhaps is that the hero in this instance is a very pleasing mixture of "Dutch and Irish" as the careless talker would say, who is always doing something nice, singing pretty songs and making love to a fair girl apparently far above his station, but in reality, like himself, one of the nobility, for he is a long-lost heir tardily returning to claim his own.

Mr. Wilson is a pleasing singer and has a very agreeable personality. His Mets and German enough to mar the Irish atmosphere of his surroundings, but his performance was attractive enough to his audience last night to secure for him a number of curtain calls and a standing ovation. He sang a number of songs, but a "mule story," which wasn't bad. Fairly dividing the honors with him, and presenting a splendid bit of character, was a very clever and full brogue, both in the Irish and the German, was little Olive Wright in the role of an orphan, Little Bantry, a banished victim of the "mule story," which Mr. Wilson sang sweetly. Little Olive was a material factor, as she was also in "Gretchen," who, by her singing and quaint German accent won her many curtain calls as fell to the lot of the star. Mr. Wilson sang a number of songs, but a "mule story," which wasn't bad. Fairly dividing the honors with him, and presenting a splendid bit of character, was a very clever and full brogue, both in the Irish and the German, was little Olive Wright in the role of an orphan, Little Bantry, a banished victim of the "mule story," which Mr. Wilson sang sweetly.

The play deals with the efforts of an English officer, who, as a wicked steward, is endeavoring to win a young woman, supposed to be the heiress to a large estate, solely for her money, which really belongs to Mets, who finally wins her himself. The amusing part of the plot is that the rascals hire Mets to impersonate the long-lost heir. The play was well played throughout. Thaddeus Shine, the well known Washington player, made a very bad steward, which is a compliment to what he is. He tended to be. Florence Stover made an excellent Ann Dolan, the self-assertive Irish wife of the blacksmith. Irma La Plante, who is fetching Rose of Erin, Kathleen O'Malley; Edith Wright a quite acceptable Peggy Dolan, an Irish colleen, and Bertha, the maid, were all good. English officer. The cast, indeed, was quite good, and the chorus singing and dancing were deserving of commendation.

Chase's.

Five "boys," four girls and five pianos were the principals in a clever musical act presented at Chase's Theater last night which quickly won the appreciation and plaudits of the large audience. It was billed as "The New Pianophiles, a Swagger Musical Novelty," and was replete with action and hits. The stage setting, with its concert pianos in a double line, resembled the salesroom of a music establishment. One of the features was seemingly a suggestion from the noted "reorder" series, for the theater called forth several hearty cheers was the song by one of the girls, "You Don't Know How Much You Gotta Know." The boys in the musical mix-up were Jack C. Claire, Bert D. Harris, Harry Byrd, and Conrad and Leonard C. C. The pretty versatile girls were Marie Fenton, Nettie Lyon, Nell Custer and Cornelia Shea.

Another novelty that won encomiums from the auditors was Kid Gabriel's plastic poses in facsimile of real life among the hardy cowboys, realizing the pictures by Remondin and Chippendale. The Wild West Illustrated. It was explained that the "Kid" is himself a cowboy to the manner born and his pictures were therefore realistic.

"The Order of the Bath," a comedy playlet, presented an opportunity for several funny and perplexing situations. When Mildred Chippendale, a girl who finds herself accidentally locked in a bathroom with Capt. Lantier of the British army. The part of Capt. Lantier was given by Henry Storer, formerly leading man in the Frohman companies, an opportunity to present some fetching scenes on the high class stage. The playlet was a success, and the girls who gave with fine effect "The Merry Widow."

Lew Hawkins, "the mirthful man in green," was at his best in several topical songs and monologue hits. With a huge scene set about half the length of the boat has been built for the motor. The vessel will be handsomely equipped for pleasure trips on the river. She will be ready to start on her motor-boat races during the water carnival in the latter part of this week. Commodore Forsberg's launch will be one of the finest of its kind afloat.

Academy.

"The Convict's Daughter," a four-act melodrama by Owen Davis, is the attraction this week, and the production abounds in thrills of every variety. Applause from the audience greeted many of the players who have appeared at the Academy in other productions.

The first scene of the play is located in a small mining camp in the far west. A villain, Milton Deveroux, starts the ball rolling by a double murder, then telling the ming claim of one of his victims. The situations constantly grow more exciting and heart-touching until the final climax is reached. The play is set in the east, where he poses as one of the men he murdered and robbed. Frank Templeman is convicted by the somewhat unwilling testimony of Lucy Corbin, the daughter of her father, Tom Corbin, one of the arch villain's victims. Of course Templeman is in love with Lucy, and the latter is in love with the villain. The play is a melodrama of the most popular type. The audience is well pleased with the show.

New Lyceum.

"The Follies of the Day," one of the best burlesque shows seen here this season, opened a week's engagement at the New Lyceum yesterday afternoon before a crowded house. The show, while without any plot, is in two good acts, and is full of bright, catchy songs, handsomely gowned chorus girls and plenty of good comedy. Larry McCall as Timothy McAdoo, and Harry Lester as Louis Mann, both running for Congress, kept the audience in an uproar throughout the show, and their support is very good. Deserving of special mention are Gertrude Hayes, Sandy McGregor and George Betts, who appear in the specialties.

Majestic.

A good bill was presented at the Majestic Theater yesterday, and a large audience seemed pleased with the performance. The vaudeville numbers included Clyde Bates and company in a comedy sketch entitled "Freddie's Aunt," which proved the chief attraction; La Cerna and La Rue presented a comedy; Reid and Foster, eccentric singing, talking and dancing comedians, who made a hit; and Florence Douglas, monomaniac who, in a series of sketches, motion pictures completed the program.

TO HAVE FILTRATION PLANT

TAKOMA PARK TAXPAYERS VOTE FOR BOND ISSUE.

Indebtedness of $10,000 Authorized for New Work and Installation of Water Meters.

The resident taxpayers of Takoma Park, Md., by an overwhelming majority voted yesterday in favor of the installation of a new ten-thousand-dollar filtration plant and for a bond issue to carry it. The decision was reached as the result of an election held yesterday, which resulted 71 to 18.

The report of the judges of the election was approved at a meeting of the town council held last night in the Takoma Presbyterian Church, on Maple avenue. The judges were J. H. Van Houten, L. M. Moores, Norman Brainard and E. Norman Jackson, clerk. The additional indebtedness of $10,000 is for the construction of a filtration plant, which will cost approximately $6,500; installation of water meters, $2,500; enlarging reservoir, $1,500. The present indebtedness for the water system, incurred several years ago, amounts to $40,000. The report of the judges concluded by stating that "it therefore appears that two-thirds of the taxpayers voted in favor of the proposed indebtedness and the council is authorized to incur the same."

The council lost no time in assuming its authority, and the water and sewer committee was requested to secure bids for installing approximately 200 water meters. Bids will be opened at a special meeting of the council to be held on the 20th inst. The council also arranged to secure the services of a consulting engineer to install the plant. The town clerk was authorized to advertise the bonds for bids to be opened October 1.

Result Pleases Officials.

The mayor and members of the council were highly gratified at the result of the election yesterday, feeling that the health of the entire community would have been jeopardized had the taxpayers voted the proposition down. The council for some time past has been investigating the condition of the water and endeavoring to relieve the situation, but without success. It was not until yesterday that it was put up to the people to decide what should be done, and the vote of yesterday clearly outlined the attitude of the property owners.

In addition to the agitation concerning a filtration plant, a movement toward the beautification of Takoma Park has gained considerable momentum. Franklin Meehan of Philadelphia has been engaged to give a free discourse on landscape gardening next Saturday at 4 o'clock on the lawn in front of the residence on the Blair road. The report of Town Treasurer Ben G. Davis was submitted and approved by the council. The receipts during the month of August are as follows: Taxes, $454.32; water rents, $140.12; water rent deposits, $30; permits, $13; builders' deposits, $10; insurance, $10; miscellaneous, $4.50, making a total of $681.14, which, with the balance on hand of $4,612.92, made a grand total of $5,294.06. The disbursements during the same period were as follows: Pumping plant, $38.98; sewer system, $10.01; water works, $22.67; street work, $83.41; street lighting, $25.85; water rent deposits, $30; general expenses, $4.43; tapping fees, $20; parks, $8; salaries, $100.25, making a total of $301.80, leaving a net balance on hand of $4,992.26.

Asks Cheaper Water Rate.

A request was received from Angus Lammond for the reduction of the water meter rates from 15 cents per 100 cubic feet to 10 cents per 100 cubic feet. The matter was referred to the water and sewer committee for report.

The Washington Sanitarium Association submitted a detailed report of the construction of the new reinforced steel and concrete bridge across the Silgo stream at Camp Adams, the bridge was completed and accepted by the town August 12 last.

Those present at the meeting were: Mayor, H. F. Tarr, R. D. Rush, H. E. Rogers, J. S. Saunders, E. E. Blodgett and Town Clerk Ben G. Davis.
